

12 Ray Kwon

12A Introduction

James Bond is one of the world's most famous spies, even though he only exists in books and movies. This is the story of his younger brother, Kwon. Ray Kwon.

12B Song Lyrics

*He's the international man of mystery, a secret agent in disguise.
His name: Ray Kwon.*

At the hotel pool, we find 002,
Ray Kwon, secret agent, no shoes.
He enjoys leisure, freedom from work,
He loves Harry Potter, so he's reading the book.
But he looks up past his book at the scene,
He sees a man skinnier than a string bean.
The man runs to the docks, but he's pursued,
Kwon follows the dude, looking for clues.

The man jumps into his speedboat to escape,
And elude Kwon, he gets away, but wait.
Kwon is flying through the air with a jetpack,
With flames flying out, you better get back.
But then the man gets back and retrieves
A rocket launcher from beneath his seat.
With a tiny, minute smile on his lips,
He fires at Kwon, and the missile hits.

*Could Ray Kwon be no more?
Extinct like the dinosaurs?
Find out after the hook!*

It's Mr. Ray...he's the man of mystery (Kwon, Ray Kwon). x2

Now, Kwon had built a robot in his image or likeness,
And the missile hit the robot like a roadblock.
The real Kwon was back at the pool with a Pepsi,
To save and conserve his energy.
Now his priority, most important thing,
Is catching the man who killed his robot twin.
He invents and formulates a plan,
And races off in his Mercedes Benz.

The man in his boat goes under the bridge,
And Kwon jumps down, landing on it.
Kwon says "I can help you," but it's a lie,
He's trying to control and manipulate the guy.

Kwon doesn't sell out, he stays true,
Stays firm and always resolute.
But the man grabs a poison hand grenade,
To throw into the water to contaminate it.

Kwon improvises, makes it up on the spot,
He grabs a pen from his pants, and says,
"Stop. This here pen has a laser in it,
This could melt you like a grilled cheese sandwich."
The man gives up, and Kwon arrests him,
The TV news comes to ask him questions:
"Do you feel a burden on you, a weight?"
"Well, yes, I have to save the word nearly twice a day."

12G Understanding What You Read

burden / conserve / contaminate / elude / extinct / formulates / improvises / leisure / likeness / manipulate / minute / priority / pursue / resolute / retrieve

Read the passage below. Then answer the questions.

Danielle really wanted to participate in a fun after school activity, but she wasn't quite sure which activity to pursue. As she looked at the list of activities to choose from she didn't see anything that she thought she would enjoy. She didn't care for sports. She wasn't interested in the book club reading list. Homework was her least favorite thing to do, and she wasn't really into music. It looked like another year would go by without Danielle joining an extra activity to enjoy in her leisure time.

Then one day, just as Danielle had given up on joining a club, she noticed a large poster in the hallway above the drinking fountain. The poster read, "NEW Animation Club starting this Friday! See Mr. Davidson in Room 6 for more details." Danielle loved Mr. Davidson's film class, and maybe this activity was just what she was looking for. But animation: what was that?

On Friday, Danielle went to check out the new club, and after walking into the classroom, she knew this was something different. Mr. Davidson had set up a video camera in the center of the room pointing at a table. On the table were two clay figures: one that looked like a person and one that was shaped in the likeness of a cat. A few other students were sitting around the table.

"Are you guys playing with dolls?" Danielle asked.

"We're making a movie," one of the students said. Danielle decided to watch. The students were moving the clay figures a minute amount. Then they would pull their hands back, and one student would push a button on the camera. Then the students would manipulate the two characters again. They'd pull their hands away. The student would push the button. This repeated many times.

Finally, one of the students looked at Danielle and said, "You want to see what we've done so far?" Danielle said, "Sure," and walked over to the camera. One of the students opened the viewfinder and hit play. The screen showed one of the clay figures sitting on the ground. Suddenly, as if by magic, he jumped to his feet and began to pace around on the floor. Then the cat figure appeared and brushed up against his leg. He reached off the screen to retrieve some cat food, which he then put on the floor for the cat. It was all really well done. Danielle was amazed that kids her own age had created it. It looked almost like a cool Disney movie.

She started asking the students questions. She asked if they had already formulated the whole plot to the movie. They told her they had written some ideas, but they also did a lot of improvising. She asked if they could use another pair of hands. They said sure. Three months later, they had a finished movie, which Danielle had helped produce. She felt more proud than she'd ever been in her life.

Word Breakdown

The word extinct is closely related to extinguish, and both words mean very similar things: The life of an extinct species has been put out, or extinguished. Both words were originally only used to describe fires, but then people began to use the words about other things as well.

You probably mostly see the word extinct and think about the dinosaurs, but many other species have become extinct in the history of the world, from the dodo bird to the Western black rhino, which was declared extinct in 2006. However, many researches don't consider the dinosaurs to be extinct. Dinosaurs that lived on land died around 65 million years ago, but dinosaurs in the air survived and are closely related to birds that exist today. For this reason, many scientists consider birds to be dinosaurs. Though a pigeon might not look like a Velociraptor to you, their bone structure is remarkably similar.
